Speaker: Rich Adeyemi

Rich Adeyemi is an immigrant farmer from Nigeria and has been farming organically for 10 years before relocating to the United States where he currently serves as the Head Farmer and Educator at Rio Grande Community Farm. He is passionate about quality nutrition for families, ecosystem conservation, sustainability, urban farming and community development. Through his work, he pioneered a seed saving initiative which led to the creation of a seed bank to save and share indigenous seed varieties from going into extinction.
